Indian Cotton
A Plan For China
Lower Freight Rate

BY OUR FINANCIAL EDITOR

It will be interesting to the Chinese textile mills to learn that the Indian Central Cotton Committee is going to make a big and vigorous effort to increase the supply of Indian cotton. The necessity for setting up some alternative to the American producer has indeed become urgent in India. The world's demand upon American supplies has been trenched upon by three very potent factors during the past few years. In the first place the increasing number of American cotton mills, especially in the South, where they adjoin the cotton fields, is intensifying the demand for raw cotton. In the second place the ravages of the boll weevil have induced a large number of cotton growers to abandon cotton and grow other crops which pay them as well, if not better. Thirdly, Japan and China have both doubled their manufacture of cotton during the past ten years, and are now competitors with Lancashire for the dwindling quantity of American cotton which is still available.

In the opinion of many American experts the shrinkage in cotton production in the United States is not a temporary phenomenon but is likely to be permanent unless the boll weevil can be destroyed. And in view of the increasing local demand for the raw material there will be a corresponding tendency to reserve an ever larger percentage of the entire crop for the benefit of American looms.

It is interesting to note the large increase in exports of Indian cotton to Lancashire. From a pre-war annual average of between 50,000 and 60,000 bales it has increased until during the twelve months ending last July it reached 375,000 bales. The exportable surplus that now finds its way to Lancashire from India is given at 300,000 bales. It is estimated that in ten years' time India will be making a notable contribution towards the emancipation of the work from the American cotton-growing monopoly.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

The Chinese Industrial Mission has been visiting Lancashire. In Manchester the mission was advised that the best method of increasing the wealth of China was to increase the production of raw materials required by the rest of the world.

It is suggested that the Chinese Industrial Mission should be made to cotton. The Manchester Guardian Commercial suggests that it might be possible for an official of the British Empire Cotton-Growing Corporation to be lent for the purpose of supervising cotton developments in China. The idea is a grand one, and we trust that textile mills in China will prevail upon the Empire Corporation to extend its operations to a field, which although it is foreign, should prove of great assistance to the British Empire in conserving its cotton resources. With a fully developed cotton area in this country there will be no necessity to draw upon India for supplies.

FREIGHT RATE CUT

It is announced that the freight rate on cotton from China to the Pacific Coast ports has been reduced to $5.00 per ton. Other changes in freight rates include one announced by the China Homebound Conference to Europe on 15th ult, which is to be calculated at two percent of the value of the shipment. The inclusion of cigarettes among the list of exports to the Pacific Coast is noted, the rate being fixed at $4.12-50 per ton from Shanghai. Fair cargoes continue to be carried by Trans-Pacific vessels, both east and west. The upper Yangtze freight service has been suspended owing to the low water registered, but between Hankow and Shanghai there is a fair amount of merchandise being transported.

PLAN TO ANALYSE NANKING DOLLAR HERE ON MONDAY

Disputed Coins To Be Put To Test At Chinese Chamber

Despite the counter-suggestion made by Prof. Fred C. Mabee of the Shanghai College to hold a joint analysis of the four Nanking mini dollars which he had found to be under standard at his own laboratory on Tuesday, the public analysis of portions of the four dollars will be held at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, North Honsan Road, on Monday morning at 10 o'clock as announced, according to a statement made by Mr. Chao Ek-hung, the mint director, yesterday.

When interviewed by a representative of THE CHINA PRESS, Mr. Chao expressed his surprise at the counter-suggestion and asserted that, after making his official invitation to all the local recognized institutions and arranging for the presence of ministerial and provincial representatives at the demonstration, it was difficult for him to make any changes. While he would write back to Prof. Mabee and request him once more for the handing over of the coins that he had already tested, he intimated that he would go ahead with the analysis on Monday.

NEW MYSTERY UNCOVERED IN SENATE OIL INQUIRY

Code Telegrams Sent By Edward McLean Are Questioned

PALMER CALLED

Ex-Attorney General To Be Questioned By Committee

(Exclusive China Press)

Washington, Feb. 29.—The Senate Oil Committee has uncovered new elements of mystery in connection with their investigation of the affairs of Edward McLean, millionaire Washington newspaper publisher which promise sensational developments.

The Committee has already laid the groundwork for further excursions into the operations of Edward L. Doherty, head of the Pan-American Oil Company, and Harry Sinclair of the Sinclair oil interests through the reading of a large batch of telegrams exchanged between Mr. McLean and his employees. As a result of the telegrams the Committee has decided to call Mr. A. Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney-General in the Cabinet of President Wilson, who acted as Mr. McLean's attorney after he left the Cabinet.

Many of the telegrams contain code words with mysterious references to unidentified persons behind the scenes of events that have been unrolling to reveal the scandal and the Committee desires their names and their participation in the events.

UNDERWOOD TOO

POSTAL RULE OF WIRELESS IN ENGLAND RECOMMENDED

Imperial Conference Report Is Made Public

AN EMPIRE CHAIN

Immediate Erection Of New Station Is Urged

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 28.—The report of the Imperial Wireless Committee recommends that the Post Office should own and operate all the Empire wireless stations in Britain, or, alternatively, that exception be made in the case of Canada and the existing competition between the Post Office and the Anglo-Canadian wireless be continued, subject to the safe-guarding of public interests in any licence granted to the Anglo-Canadian service. In any licence granted to a private company the State must reserve the right to take possession or to exercise control of stations in an emergency.

Leadfield Station should be enlarged and the new high-power station now being built at Rugby should be extended to a sixteen-mast station and a second new station of similar capacity should be erected without delay. Each high-power station should have a world range and be equipped with the latest apparatus. The Post Office should establish an Imperial wireless chain.

The present terminal wireless station at Cairo should be removed from the Empire system as soon as the requirements of the Admiralty are met by the other stations and the proposed new high-power stations in India, South Africa and Australia are operating. An expert wireless telegraphy commission should be requested to report on the extent and cost of a wireless system for the Colonies to complete the Empire network of wireless communications. Private enterprise should be given facilities to develop wireless communication outside the Empire, subject to the case of Anglo-Continental services, to the payment of royalties or other dues in view of the competition between wireless and the State-owned cables. There should be free competition in foreign wireless subject to the State reserving the right to expropriate, take possession or assume control in case of national emergency.

Customs Inspector General's Warning Justified

TELLS PROSPECT

Barring Unusual Changes Interest Will Be Paid

Further warning that without the support of the Salt and other revenues allocated to the sinking fund, it will be impossible to fully maintain the Consolidated Loan Service, is contained in a memorandum submitted by Sir Francis Aglen, Inspector General of Customs, and transmitted here by the Shanghai Bankers' Association.

The text of the memorandum follows—the tables referred to will be printed in the next issue, lack of time precluding their inclusion herewith:

The year 1923 opened with all obligations to December 31, 1923 either met or fully covered, as was shown in the statement appended to the Inspector General's Memorandum of January 14, 1923 handed to the Shanghai Bankers' Association. In that Memorandum the Inspector General also showed that in order fully to meet the Loan Service for the year 1923 a sum of $21,584,531 additional to the balance carried forward from 1922 would have to be found. In estimating the possibility of finding this sum the Inspector General stated that there was no probability that payments from the Salt Revenue and from the Ministry of Communications, due under the Loan Regulations and amounting to $20,000,000 would be received in 1923. The balance would have to depend entirely upon the sums available from the Customs Revenue Surplus.

Attention was drawn to the fact that, owing to increased cost of foreign obligations caused chiefly by the drop in exchange and by increased Customs administrative charges, the surplus available for 1923 would be diminished by an amount estimated at $14,524,187. The dollar equivalent of the actual sum absorbed owing to these causes was, in round numbers, $13,900,000.

1923 ESTIMATES

In venturing to give an estimate of the probable surplus for the year 1923, the Inspector General stated that, making due allowance for the effect of the Revised Import Tariff, the surplus could not be expected to yield more than $17,555,814. The actual surplus was Shanghai Taels 11,762,083.63, equivalent at average rate of exchange of $16,223,563. Of the above sum $12,291,976.32 were devoted to Consolidated Loan service for 1923, making with $5,436,348.08 carried over from the 1922 surplus a total of $17,728,324.40 from Customs Revenue available for meeting the 1923 liability. The balance of the 1923 revenue surplus has, in accordance with previous practice, been carried over partly to meet foreign loan obligations maturing early in the year 1924 and partly to cover interest coupons of the Consolidated Loans maturing in February and March 1924, as it is impossible, without invading the priority of Foreign Loan and Indemnity obligations, to draw on current Revenue for the Sinking Fund of the Consolidated Loans during the first three months of any year.

venues allocated to the sinking fund, it would be impossible fully to maintain the Consolidated Loan Service in this case, to have been justified, and, until further loan service funds are released by the extinction of the 3rd Year Loan, amortization of the Consolidated Loans must be expected to lag still further behind.

Provided, however, that no violent fluctuation in exchange takes place, and that Customs revenue receipts do not fall appreciably below their present level, all interest payments during 1924 are reasonably assured.

Philippines Independence Hit By Hughes

that President Coolidge and his Cabinet, despite the good will they have expressed in conversations and communications with the Independence commission, are not prepared at this time to give way to their wishes to become a separate nation. It insures the votes of Administration Republicans in both the Senate and House against independence and leaves only a part of the Democratic delegation and a few radical Republicans in favor of the granting of independence.

It was pointed out that the Philippines are in such a financial condition that it would be impossible for them to repay the loan much under the time specified in the agreement, if they are able to shorten the time at all.

(Exclusive China Press)
Washington, Feb. 25.—Speaker Rogers of the Philippines House of Representatives, head of the independence mission now here, is preparing a statement for presentation before the House Insular Affairs committee on Monday, which will state point by point the claims made by Secretary of War John W. Weeks in the course of his testimony before the House committee recently.

Members of the Philippines mission declared that the statement to be presented by them will be largely statistical in character and will "disprove the estimates and conjectures of Secretary Weeks, which were unquestionably inaccurate."

The entire delegation is aiding in the work of preparing the statement, by which the mission hopes to overcome the serious setback occasioned their cause by reason of Secretary Weeks' claims.

Members of the delegation refused today to comment on the action of Ben F. Wright, Insular Auditor, in declining to authorize further appropriations for the independence mission, other than to say that there is no cause for the slightest concern that the mission's activities will be diminished.

The New York Times, which has consistently advocated freedom for the Philippines, commenting editorially on the claims of the mission, compares the aspirations of the Filipinos with those of India. "The Filipino leaders should be given an opportunity to take over the reins of government," the Times says. "They have had a fair degree of school in self-government."

Senate in Mr. McLean's behalf. Senator Willis of Ohio issued a statement saying he had no idea he was the man mentioned as "Willie".

Senator McKellar has introduced a resolution asking President Coolidge to forward to the Senate ex-Secretary Fall's income tax returns for examination regarding payments alleged to have been made to Mr. Fall by Mr. McLean and others.

It was also announced that the Committee would call Mr. Karl Schuyler of Denver, an attorney, to secure details concerning Harry Sinclair's payment of $8,000 to J. Leo Stack. It has already been revealed that Mr. Stack approached Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Doherty with regard to securing leases on the Teapot Dome oil lands.

Mr. Stack explained that he had held a conversation with Mr. Daniels when he was Secretary of the Navy with regard to securing leases on the Teapot Dome lands, but that Mr. Daniels refused to consider leasing the lands. Mr. Stack then induced the oil interests to pay Mr. George Creel, publicity agent for the Wilson administration, to use his influence with Mr. Daniels but Secretary Daniels remained adamant and no leases were made during President Wilson's administration.

Government's Insurance Plan Receives Unexpected Set-Back

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, Feb. 25.—The Government's insurance plan has received an unexpected set-back owing to the attitude of the Privy Council, to whom the plan is being submitted. The latter contend that the proposals should not be promulgated by Imperial Ordinance before the approval of the Diet has been secured, because the previous plan has already been vetoed. The Premier is trying to reconcile the views of the Cabinet and the Council.

Meanwhile the companies who do not require support are preparing to pay ten percent to the policy-holders on March 1.

KORNILOFF MUST DIE HIGH COURT AT HARBIN RULES

Is First Foreigner To Be Given Death Sentence

The High Court at Harbin has just handed down a decision refusing to change the death verdict given by the lower court in the case of Korniloff, the alleged Harbin bandit, and the first foreigner sentenced to death by the Chinese in over seventy years.

The Russian Daily News of Harbin, reporting the trial before the High Court, writes as follows:

"Korniloff was brought to the court at noon under a strong guard, followed soon after by his lawyer, Mr. Widder.

"The sitting was opened at one o'clock, no visitors being present in the court-room with the exception of reporters.

"Korniloff, with hands and feet in double manacles, was placed in a special cage in the court-room; the police taking no chances against a repetition of his spectacular escape from the court room last year.

"In his deposition, which lasted over an hour, he endeavored to stress the fact that he had taken no direct part in any of the murders committed by his associates, admitting only his having made his escape from the court-room and pleading that the striving for freedom was the natural instinct of all men.

"The Prosecutor, in his speech, called attention to the fact that all the circumstances confirmed Korniloff's having had a hand in the murder of Tchakowsky and Sikora, and that the prisoner himself, in his original depositions, had acknowledged his guilt in connection with those crimes.

"Mr. Widder made an ardent speech in defense of the prisoner, pointing out that there existed two varying interpretations of the decree of the President of the Chinese Republic on the abolition of capital punishment on the Chinese Eastern Railway Zone.

"In any case, he said, during the interval of time between the two decrees, namely three years, capital punishment had not been applied in the local courts of justice, and this formed a basis for the affirmation that the death penalty had been introduced only by the President's decree of December of the 12th year of the Chinese Republic, i.e., subsequent to the committing of the crimes of which Korniloff is accused.

"Further he sought to prove that the accusation against Korniloff of having committed the murders of Tchakowsky and Sikora was based exclusively on assumptions.

"There was no reason to punish Korniloff by death for having escaped from captivity, since he had formerly, for more severe crimes, been sentenced only to penal servitude.

"Mr. Widder asked for mitigation of the sentence.

"Following this, the Prosecutor made his reply, and after a few more remarks by the defense, Korniloff was given his last word.

"He again denied having taken part in the murders and declared that he had not changed his statements since the first night of his arrest.

"The court retired for ten minutes and resolved to maintain the original sentence.

"An appeal may now be made, within ten days, to the Senate, and if the ruling is confirmed it will remain with the Ministry of Justice to have it put into execution."

Greater Prosperity In Canada Is Soon; Parliament Convened

(Reuter's American Service)

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Dominion Houses of Parliament dwells on the evidences of increased prosperity and the probability of an early start on debt reduction and relief of taxation. It forecasts much constructive legislation, notably revision of the tariff in the interests of Western farmers. Regarding the decisions of the Imperial Conference, the speech merely states that a report of the proceedings will be presented to Parliament.

Weddings

Chassels—Martin

A very pretty wedding ceremony was celebrated Wednesday afternoon in Union Church when Miss Margaret Muir Martin, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, of Springfield, Uddington, Scotland, was married to Mr. Thomas Rae Chassels, son of the late Mr. James Chassels, of Glasgow.

The Rev. A. N. Rowland, M. A., officiated and Mr. Donald Macdonald presided at the organ. The bride, who was given away by Mr. W. A. Willis, wore a charming dress of white charmeuse, trimmed with a silver lace bertha, the skirt gracefully draped and finished at the waist with pleatings and bows. Mrs. W. A. Willis acted as matron of honor, wearing cornflower blue crepe de chine and a black picture hat, while Miss Mary R. Jobs, the bridesmaid, wore a tan costume trimmed with grey and a matching hat. The bridegroom was accompanied by Mr. Lish Fornie as best man and Messrs. W. N. Scott, William Buchanan, and W. Fergus Johnston acted as ushers.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Willis, 106 Route Ferguson, after which Mr. and Mrs. Chassels left for Hangchow, the bride wearing a mole gabardine hand-embroidered with a taffeta silk hat with embroidered georgette brim.

WANG-CHEN

Ningpo, Feb. 27.—Mr. Wang T. Chen, and Miss Amy Chen, were married February 12 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wilcox, North gate, Ningpo. Rev. F. C. The rooms of the Consulate were effectively decorated with American flags and red and white bunting, while the verandah, which had been enclosed for the occasion, was festooned with bamboo, and made a very pleasant retreat for the dancers.

NAVIGATION ON UPPER YANGTSE AGAIN OPENED

Disabled Steamer Shantung Is Salvaged And Sent To Shanghai

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Feb. 22.—Messrs. Butterfield and Swire's Marine Superintendent from Hankow arrived here, and went on to the place where the "Shantung" was lying disabled. He took up salvage gear with him, and must have put in some very fine work at that out-of-the-way spot, as in about a month's time he had the vessel ready to come down here under her own steam. She arrived here yesterday, and will proceed to Shanghai for her annual overhaul, and also to be thoroughly repaired after her mishap above the Ching Tan.

The navigation of the Upper Yangtze has again been opened, although the water is still very low. The "Pakiang" left on February 16 for Wanhsien, and has returned after having made a trip in lower water than has ever been attempted before. Much credit is due to Captain Turner and the River Inspector for this trip, especially as they made it without any pilots. The pilots are apparently still receiving threatening letters, and they have become so scared that they refused to take up the "Pakiang" while the water was still so low. However, they have been given a lesson which shows them that they are not quite so indispensable as they believed.

The new steamer "Shubo" left for Chungking on February 17 and the "Yihsing" is preparing to sail although the water is still below zero.

The cigarette sellers have apparently won in their fight against the new tax. As a result of the storming of the Tax Office recently by 200 dealers, the man in charge has gone away, and now cigarettes are being sold without the stamps. It is probable that instructions from the Peking Government, following the protest against the tax, have had a good effect.

General Chao Yung-hwa, the cashiered commander of the 18th Mixed Brigade, and Commissioner of Defence for Shinan and Ichang, has been able to make his position good with the higher authorities. He has returned here and now holds the office of Provost-Marshal of the Szechuen, Kweichow and Hupeh troops, and has opened his office in the same yamen that he occupied before. It is understood that he has a very small number of troops under him.

Two days ago there was a total eclipse of the moon, which was perfectly visible here. The firing of crackers, beating of gongs, and sounding of "worship bells" was to be heard everywhere until the Heavenly Dog disgorged the moon.

SOVIET HOLDS TO DEMANDS IN CHINA PARLEY

Insist On Joint Management
Of Chinese Eastern
Railway

(Exclusive China Press)

Peking, Feb. 29.—With regard to his interview with M. Karakhan, Dr. C. T. Wang is reported to have reported to Dr. Wellington Koo, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to his interview with M. Karakhan, insisting upon the conditional joint management of the Chinese Eastern Railway and upon the reservation of Outer Mongolia for a certain period after the opening of the proposed Sino-Russian conference.

Inasmuch as there exists a wide gap between the foregoing assertion by M. Karakhan and Chinese contention for the restoration of the Chinese Eastern Railway as well as for the immediate withdrawal of Russian troops from Outer Mongolia, it is generally observed that the settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway issue, which has many other complications, is hopeless. Besides, there is much doubt of M. Karakhan's sincerity towards the opening of the Sino-Russian conference, and it is inferred in foreign diplomatic circles here that in demonstrating his showing as if he were sincerely desirous of accelerating the opening of negotiations between China and Soviet Russia, M. Karakhan has in view an ultimate object to induce Japan to modify her attitude and obtain her recognition of the Soviet Government.

Shantung Railway Officials Prodded For Funds By Army

The cost of forty new bridges will exceed $3,000,000. This will be spread over three years.

There is an urgent need of the bridges, as some of the present ones are none so safe and too long have received only temporary repairs. The new bridges will be of steel construction and are expected to last for a long time.

The railroad does not look with favour on a general upward revision of freight tariffs, but proposes to put the burden on the commodities that can best stand it.

Coal in the amount of a million tons annually is transported over the line and the rates are abnormally low; the officials believe, all coal shippers, accordingly, may be compelled to pay a higher tariff. This is true particularly of the Lu Ta Corporation, a Sino-Japanese concern, which has been benefiting by a low rate in operation since the Japanese administration of the railroad.

More than 500,000 tons yearly is shipped by this company, alone, and at an approximate charge of $3.40 per ton. The officials propose raising this rate to about $4.50 per ton, or to a similar charge to that paid by smaller shippers.

This item alone would give the railroad increased revenue of about $1,200,000 annually.

Besides its bridge-building program which it hopes to finance, the railroad is badly in need of new rolling equipment, some of which has seen more than a score of years' service.

Germany Awaiting League Invitation

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Feb. 28.—In view of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's recent statement, it is noteworthy that the Foreign Minister, Herr Stresemann, in a speech in the Reichstag, declared that the Government had not rejected in principle the idea of entering the League of Nations, but had not received an invitation from a responsible quarter.

He further stressed the necessity for a guarantee of full and unconditional membership of the League to be extended to Germany, including membership of the Council.

Japan's Consul At Vladivostok Sent To Peking

The "Jiji Shimpo" writes to the following effect:—"It is true that public opinion in Japan is in favor of the recognition of Soviet Russia with a view to the immediate restoration of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

"For the failure to open Russo-Japanese negotiations, Japan is partly responsible, but this fact by no means affords any reason for Japan to recognize the latest outrageous policy of the Soviet Government towards Japan."

"The steps taken by the Soviet Government, no matter what pretexts it may make, have unnecessarily incited the ill-feeling of the Japanese nation against Soviet Russia.

"No one can tell that there may not be created a crisis that will completely change Japan's public opinion towards Soviet Russia, unless the Soviet Government alters its attitude."

The "Yomiuri" says:—"That Soviet Russia has created the recent anti-Japanese feeling lies mainly in fabrication and misunderstanding and so if there are any points that have to call for grave reflection and improvement, those points, needless to say, are on the part of the Soviet Government. We have not the least idea of exchanging any anti-Japanese agitation for the restoration of diplomatic relations."

The "Tokio Asahi" says that it is, indeed, a very bad policy for Soviet Russia to attempt to accelerate the opening of the Russo-Japanese negotiations by such means as to further the antipathy of the Japanese nation.

New Tax Schedule In U. S. Suggested

(Exclusive China Press)

Washington, Feb. 29.—It is announced that the Republican leaders in the House have agreed to supplant the tax schedule suggested by Congressman Garner, tax legislation leader for the Democrats, with the schedule made out by Congressman Nick Longworth of Ohio which makes the minimum surtax 37 1/2 percent.

Japanese Boxers To Be Seen In Action Here On Evening Of March Tenth

Syd Keenan Matched With Yokoyama, Best Looking Of Four Invaders; Wolfe, Meyer And Tigora Also To Appear Against Them

By Westa

Although the articles of agreement have not yet been signed it is assured that a boxing program, in which the Japanese mitt artists now in town will figure as principals, will be staged at the New Carlton on Monday evening, March tenth. Two meetings have been held between the Japanese and their representatives on one side, and local boxers and managers on the other, at which it was definitely agreed to put on the bouts. The date was advanced to March 10 in order to give the Japanese fighters a chance to regain their land legs, their trip over from Japan having been quite rough.

There was a meeting yesterday at the New Carlton, attended by the Japanese and their manager, Dr. O'Hara, representing the boxing commission; Louis Ladow; Lloyd E. Brown, manager of Syd Keenan and Eddie Wolfe, and others, at which it was agreed in principle to arrange a card for the date mentioned.

It was decided at this meeting that the main event would consist of a bout between Syd Keenan and Yokoyama, the best looking boy in the quarter that Manager Koriyama brought over from Japan. This boy slightly overweight at present, but his manager says he can get down to 125 pounds in a week's time, and as this is near Keenan's poundage the pair will enter the ring fairly well matched as far as avoirdupois is concerned.

The contestants for the semi-final have not been definitely picked, although Eddie Wolfe or Betty Meyer are the most likely candidates at present, with Tigora another possibility.

KEENAN AGREES

Keenan, after watching the Japanese boys work out, declared himself willing to take on any one of them that may be selected, although he admitted it was a rather risky offer on his part to concede five or six pounds, particularly to Kuba, or Yokoyama, the heaviest of the Japanese boys. These scrappers have already started their training and local boxing sharps who have seen them in action frankly admit that they were surprised by what the boys displayed.

The best of the Japanese boys appears to be Yokoyama, who fights at about 127 pounds. This youngster certainly looks like a scrapper. He is very muscular, fast on his feet, and handles his flippers with fine skill. He has been fighting in various cities in Japan for the past three years, and has cleaned up everything in sight, including all the foreign talent that could be obtained to try conclusions with him.

The Japanese boys, as stated, are already in training, although they were in good shape when they arrived, aside from being slightly overweight due to a rather protracted period of inactivity. They were all out doing road work yesterday and from today on they will have regular sessions with the gloves, opposing each other as well as some of the local scrappers who have agreed to take them on in practice bouts.

JAPANESE AGOG

The Japanese community is quite wrought up about these boxers, and the attendance of Japanese at the bouts a week from Monday is sure to be good. Boxing, while comparatively new in Japan, has already gained a great foothold, according to Manager Koriyama, who says that in a very few years he is confident that Japanese boxers will be seen in action against the best scrappers in the world outside of the heavy-weight class. He admitted that from all present indications Japan had no candidates, likely or otherwise, for Jack Dempsey's crown.

The Japanese boys now in the city, according to their manager, have had the benefit of such foreign instruction as it has been possible for them to obtain, chiefly from the crews of British and American warships that have visited Japan, and from foreign amateurs in Yokohama, Tokyo and Osaka. In addition they have read everything about boxing that they could get hold of, and have practiced among themselves. One point greatly in their favor, their manager says, is their absolute fearlessness—and disregard of danger. Their fighting spirit, he contends, could not be improved upon.

Manager Koriyama is himself a great student of boxing, and has been for years. He has traveled extensively in America and Europe and has never lost an opportunity to study foreign boxers and their methods. He said yesterday that he had been convinced for many years that Japanese boys could achieve great success in the ring, particularly in the light weight classes, if they would apply themselves to the art as industriously as they had to other sports, such as tennis and baseball.

MOVIE PICTURES SOON TO PROVIDE GOLF EDUCATION

Films Of Harry Vardon Make Many Interesting Revelations

Slow motion pictures of golfers have been seen on the screen, but the educational features have never been properly announced. Fundamentals of the golf swing can be shown more vividly through this medium than any other.

For years there was no machine which could slow down the golfing swing so that the moment of impact could be made slow enough to permit analysis of the wrist action. But the improvements in the last six months have been so great that golf education can be founded upon the knowledge discerned in a film.

There have been a few films taken recently of Harry Vardon who, although he does not measure up in tourney play as he did a few years back, is still the master stylist of them all. The dissection of his swing, therefore, can be put down as a step forward in golf instruction. There are many players who can hit at daisies perfectly but who, when they are faced with the ball on the tee, lose their confidence and cause a swing distortion. Vardon rarely if ever can be accused of this fault and therefore pictures taken of the renowned master golfer can be relied upon more than others.

SWING BACK

The most interesting of all the instructive bits of information gleaned from the films is seen in the swing back. It has been the accepted theory of 50 percent of golfers that the clubhead must precede the hands and that the clubface should start to turn away from the ball at the very beginning of the stroke, with the hands doing the guiding, but following. But the pictures show very clearly that at the beginning of the upswing the wrists recede at least three inches before the clubhead actually moves away from the ball.

This fact was discovered almost for the first time a year ago, but now the screen discloses almost the exact distance. The swing begins with a straightening of the left arm (those who have seen Chick Evans play will readily recall this action), and this straightening makes the left wrists bend inward and pushes the right hand back for three inches before the clubhead starts to move. At this stage the hands are about three inches back of the ball. Then it is that the left wrist begins to turn inward and causes the clubface to move away from the ball. The clubhead soon catches up and takes the lead, but it certainly in these Vardon close pictures does not stir until the wrists have gone back three inches.

"OLD BILL" RICHEST HORSE IN WORLD

"Old Bill," worth $200,000, is the richest horse in the world. The horse, owned by Miss Hannah Kyle, is 26 years old and has a five-acre pasture fronting on the most expensive street in Youngstown, O. Miss Kyle says there isn't enough money in the world to buy the pasture as long as "Old Bill" is alive.

KEEPS IN TRECK

The effect seems to be that the club-head goes back in a straight line behind the ball longer than would otherwise be the case and returns in the same track, which helps materially to produce a straight drive. Vardon himself says that for a long time he has been conscious of such a proceeding in the backswing, but also says that it is unwise for all golfers to make slavish attempts to secure the action. He believes it is an involuntary movement and that the player should concentrate at the start on turning the left wrist inward.

One other very interesting bit of information, is fully as important, perhaps more so, for ninety out of a hundred ordinary class players—is that the left heel must be on the ground before the club-head reaches the ball. The left heel, raised to permit the pivoting of the body, ought to go down flat to brace up the body for the smash.

Distributes Tracts As Battle Rages At Chengtu

(The following letter describing the capture of Chengtu by the Northern forces was received yesterday by the Rev. Charles L. Lee of Shanghai from Mr. Thomas Torrance, of the American Bible Society at Chengtu.)

Chengtu, Feb. 28.—Chengtu fell to Yang Sen's men this morning. It was not a long job after all. When Hsiung Keh-wu came back, a meeting of several generals was called to consider the situation. They thought that Yang Sen and his fellows intended fighting them one by one, so all agreed to renew the fight, only this time all together.

On Sunday, as some advance troops came, the gates were shut. From now on it was sniping all day and yelling by night, punctuated by the boom of an occasional big gun.

On Thursday a long line of men in string fashion put out from the Arsenal camp to drive back the enemy. It was a queer way to attack an opposing force. Why they did not move up in three lines or so, frontal broad fashion, beats me to say. The Canadians watched the farce from the top of the hospital. Almost at first contact the Southerners turned tail and ran. How they did run! The big officers were in three chairs! The chairs ran too, didn't they thought. They must have broken a few records in this.

At the time the hubbub began I was distributing tracts in concert with others all over the city, and did not see the "battle." But I happened to be in the North Gate Street and I went up on the wall to get the news. They were then firing obliquely to the northeast corner region. I got an order to go round and give away tracts to the soldiers. We kept on at our job. Being close to the wall we were quite safe from bullets, and the people everywhere felt better where they saw a foreigner moving around calmly among them.

"Why don't you go and negotiate peace for us?" I was asked. "Your generals don't want it," I said, "and what can we do?" They read the tracts all right and made their comments too. One old lady said: "You are to worship the Tien Laoya and not the Shen." (Shen is our common name for idols.) And I heard a man saying we worshipped Tien like them. All my years in China I have never seen tracts so graciously accepted as they were these three days we were delivering them.

When I returned, the bullets were whizzing everywhere. The fellows outside kept peppering the walls.

and their aim often was too high, giving us the benefit: our house got four or five. The Canadian Compound had quite a shower. Then a lull came about four o'clock in the afternoon. I went up on the wall and saw a long line of transport moving south to the East Suburb, and knew by that the Southerners under General Lai had been worsted. Lai retreated down the Henshow Road, it is said.

Hsiung Keh-wu fled the city after dark. Yang Sen was urging Liu Yu-ku to hand him over, and doubtless he was best out of it. Last night Liu Yu-ku went himself with all the soldiers and the Northerners came in early.

Some looting, though not much, was done by the retreating men; and some has been done by the men coming in. Hsiung Keh-wu's house behind us was ransacked at three o'clock. The firing woke us. I got up and found women tumbling over our back wall in dread of the soldiers. I put them in our guest hall, and kept guard until all was quiet. At daybreak the people in general looted it clean.

Yang Sen and Teng Si-hed will arrive this evening. It is time. I have had a job today helping the neighbors to be safe from the new soldiery. But they have been fairly respectful. My friend Liao, I hear, had his house broken into by the soldiers.

At Tungchuan Hsiung had to rush through a cordon of the enemy, revolver in hand. He and his bodyguard leaped the city wall and escaped.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Chengtu, Feb. 7.—General Hsiung Keh-wu, having escaped from Tung-ch'uan, fled to Chengtu where he has held conference with Generals Lai Hsin-hui and Liu Yu-chiu and the other commanders. The decision is said to have been made to hold the city at all costs.

General Yang Sen's men looted the Friends' Hospital in Tung Ch'uan in the course of their search for General Hsiung Keh-wu, who is reported actually to have been hiding in the offices of the Salt Gabelle. No news is coming through from that quarter.

The city (Chengtu) has been closed and in a state of siege since February 3 and mails and provisions have to be brought in over the wall. The former are very erratic and it is not known here (outside the city) whether mail is being sent down river. Several skirmishes have taken place and much rifle, machine-gun and heavy gun fire directed into the city. A sortie by General Hsiung Keh-wu's troops was routed by General Yang Sen's troops this afternoon.

Unless Generals Liu Yu-chiu and Lai Hsin-hui have a secret agreement with General Yang Sen and are awaiting a suitable opportunity to betray General Hsiung, heavy fighting will take place within the next few days.

The Globe Trotters

Proof of their versatility as well as their laugh-making ability was given at the Carlton Theater last night by Dick Norton and his company of "Globe Trotters," when, before a large and thorough appreciative audience they presented an entirely new program, quite as chock-full of laughs and excellent bits as that which marked their opening here earlier in the week.

For the two hours which followed the opening number in which they introduced themselves, members of the company kept the audience in a continuous uproar. There were 24 items on the program and so good were all of them that it would be difficult to say that any was better than the other. WILLIAM FOX presents PEARL WHITE

"THE THIEF"

Women the world over, and since the world was an infant, have been influenced by clothes. The longing for gowns better than those of one's neighbor has led to as much trouble in the world, perhaps, as any other ambition.

It is a picture play that has the influence of clothes as its motive power.

Gowns, beautiful gowns, most of them brought direct from Paris, are worn by Pearl White.

The story of what a woman will do, to get finer clothes than her neighbor.

A dramatic story that touches every home where woman abides.

Gen. Tang Chi-yu Slain In Szechuen

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 29.—A telegram from Chungking says that the Chinese papers report that General Tang Chi-yu, General Tang Chi-yao's brother, who ruled Kweichow, has been assassinated in Szechuen. The papers hint that the assassination was the work of General Liu Shen-shih's agent but go on to explain that General Tang wanted to send reinforcements to assist General Hsiung Keh-wu, to which the Kweichow leaders objected. Thereupon General Tang Chi-yu shot and killed a Kweichow officer and was subsequently murdered. Corroboration cannot be obtained in Peking.

Laconia Has "Pilot" Who Never Sleeps

The 20,000-ton Cunard liner Laconia, bearing its 723 tourist passengers on Clark's Fourth Cruise Around the World due in Shanghai on Sunday is guided by a "pilot" who never sleeps, eats or talks but is on duty 24 hours a day and is such an accurate steersman that he never allows the helm to vary more than one-sixth of a degree.

This wonderful helmsman is the Sperry gyro-pilot, a mechanical device which in conjunction with the Sperry gyro-compass automatically directs the steamer on its course without the aid of a steersman's hand. The device was perfected by the Sperry Gyroscope Company, Ltd., of London, England.

On her around-the-world voyage last year, the Laconia was equipped with a gyro-compass, a rapidly rotating wheel so mounted that its axle takes up a direction parallel to the earth's axis, and consequently points to the true north and south poles. It is a compass without any magnetic needles and is therefore unaffected by the iron and steel used in the ship's construction.

GYRO-PILOT ADDED

This year the gyro-pilot or automatic steering device was also added, and according to Captain E. T. Britten, R. D., R. N. R., the mechanical "steersman" has made possible a 75 percent better sailing course for the Laconia than any man could steer and all that is necessary is to set a proper course twice a day and adjust the pilot properly for the different weather conditions.

The Laconia is said to be the first British steamer to adopt the gyro-compass and gyro-pilot although several American vessels are equipped with them.

The helmsman on board the Laconia becomes a lookout for the unexpected, ready to detect the mechanical steering device and relieve the mechanical pilot of the wheel in case of an imminent collision or any other untoward event making necessary a prompt change of course.

According to the claims of the inventor, the gyro-pilot will steer to one-sixth of a degree, and even a good human steersman is allowed a deviation of one degree in directing the course of a vessel.

The brain of the gyro-pilot is the gyro-compass. Like an electric clock in a hotel transmits its time indications to time dials situated in the public rooms, so the gyro-compass passes all alterations of the ship's head to other compasses working in conjunction with the latest wireless direction finder on the bridge and other parts of the ship. One of these repeater compasses is mounted on the gyro-pilot and immediately the ship's head changes its direction the information is passed to an electric motor which turns the steering wheel the requisite amount to bring the ship back to her course.

CORRECT COURSE

The motive power of the mechanism is a one-third horse power reversible electric motor which drives the steering wheel by means of a sprocket and chain drive. When the ship's head moves, the repeater compass swings around and according to the direction of its movement the motor is set in operation and acts upon the helm sufficiently to bring the vessel back to her course.

The adjustment is reduced to so exact and fine a point that it is only necessary for a deviation from the course of one-sixth of a degree in order to create a reaction in the mechanism which will right the altered direction.

The advantage of the new system of navigation are self evident even to one unacquainted with nautical affairs. The maintenance of a better course means a certain saving in distance traversed and therefore a reduction in the consumption of fuel. Since there is less variation in helm there is less steam required.

BENEFITS PASSENGERS

From the passengers' point of view, the gyro-pilot adds much to the comfort of traveling. "Yawing" about entails a certain degree of rolling which has a nauseating effect on those unaccustomed to sailing and the almost total elimination of deviation means that the vessel travels on an almost level keel.

In case the mechanism should cease to function from any cause whatsoever, an automatic buzzer of the loudest type would give a signal that could be heard all over the ship and the man on duty at the wheel would declutch the gear and steer the vessel either by the manual or steam helm.

The gyro-compass and pilot is equipped with a continuous course recorder which tabulates the exact distance covered and the direction taken.

Exchange

Silver was down yesterday for spot and forward in London, the quotation being 33 1/2 d. and 33 1/2 d. India sold a small amount.

Business in the silver market of London was reported to be moderate and the market closed quiet. In New York the rate was 1/4 down, the rate being 63 1/2. The New York-London cross rate was 4.30 1/2.

The market here opened yesterday steady with sellers 3s. 3 1/4 d. for sterling, 70 1/2 for gold dollars and 63 1/2 for yen for March. There was very little doing, a small trade being transacted at these rates.

In the afternoon at the close the market was a shade easier with buyers offering the opening selling rates. Banks were buyers of four months' sight bills at 3s. 4d. for sterling and 72 for gold.

CHINA SANCTIONS FLIGHT OVER HER BY U.S. AVIATORS

Landing Places Selected in Shanghai, Tsingtao And Amoy

Peking, Feb. 25.—With the arrival in China about March 15 of Lieutenant Lawton, U. S. A., final arrangements for the Chinese leg of the world flight to be made by a squadron of United States army planes will be made. The Chinese Government has advised the American Legation of its willingness to permit the machines to fly over China under certain restrictions.

The American authorities must notify the Chinese Government of the time of arrival and departure as well as the place where that will take place, the routes to be followed, the length of stay, the type of the machine and so forth. The planes are specifically requested not to fly over such strategic places as the Shanghai artillery preserve, the Woosung Fortification, Foochow fortification, and the Mamo, Fukien dockyard.

The Chinese have specially designated Shanghai, Tsingtao and Amoy as landing places. The aviators must carry papers which will explain to Chinese officials their status. At the end of this communication to the American Legation, the protecting clause is added that these regulations are purely temporary arrangements between the two countries and have no connection with the Aviation Treaty which China has not yet ratified.

The American squadron will come to China sometime during the summer making Shanghai their port. According to the latest information available on the subject, Major F. L. Martin, squadron commander, Lieut. Erik H. Nelson, squadron engineer officer, Capt. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Leigh Wade, will leave Langley Field Va., for the Davis Douglass plant at Santa Monica, March first. There these four fliers will take over the planes built especially for the flight and will then fly them to Rockwell Field, where the initial trial flights will be held.

From San Diego, the four airmen will fly to Seattle, where they will hop off on the first leg of the 39,000 mile voyage over the air lanes of 22 foreign countries. It originally was intended to start the world trip from Langley Field. This, however, would have necessitated a flight over the Canadian border, which would have been impossible.

stated the fliers winging their way across the American continent.

The first leg of the flight, from Seattle to Attu Island, at the western tip of the Aleutians will be under the supervision of Lieut. Clayton L. Bissell.

The flight from Attu Island across the Bering Sea to the Kamchatka peninsula on the Siberian coast, and southward along the islands of Japan will be controlled by Lieut. Clifford C. Nutt.

The third division, from Nagasaki, Japan, to Shanghai and on to Calcutta, India, will be in charge of Lieut. M. S. Lawton.

The fourth division, from Calcutta over the Persian Gulf and the Bosphorus to Constantinople, will be in charge of Lieut. K. A. Halvorsen. Lieutenant Halvorsen now is in the Philippines. He will leave Manila this week for Calcutta to confer with British air service officials on the Calcutta-Constantinople airway.

The fifth leg, from Constantinople to London, will be in charge of Maj. Carlisle Walsh. This route already is well mapped by the British.

The sixth leg, from London up the shore of Iceland and Greenland and southward to the Canadian border, will be in charge of Lieut. Clarence Crumrine. For the last four months Lieutenant Crumrine, operating out of Copenhagen and being afforded every assistance by the Danish Government, has been engaged in selecting suitable landing places in Greenland and Iceland.

The purpose of the flight, as announced by Maj. Gen. Mason Patrick, chief of the United States Army Air Service, are threefold: First, to demonstrate the possibility of dispatching military airplanes on long-distance flights with a satisfactory arrangement of the enormous supply problems involved; second, to demonstrate the feasibility of a world-airway and of traversing this airway in the shortest time possible; and, third, to bring the United States the honor of being the first to circumnavigate the world by air.

America is not going to achieve the feat without a picturesque battle. Great Britain and Portugal have been preparing for months for around-the-world flights, and it is significant and both these countries will attempt the globe air voyage.

"Accessories To Murder"

THE heading above was used by the Peking and Tientsin Times over an account of the recent sale of $5,500,000 worth of munitions by Italian interests in Tientsin to the Tsao Kun Government in Peking. According to the account in the British paper in Tientsin the arms consist of 30,000 rifles, 40,000,000 rounds of ammunition for rifles, artillery shells, artillery wagons and limbers and field guns. This material has been stored in a large godown at the corner of Marco Polo Street in the Italian Concession in Tientsin since December 1919. It was transported to China on a Japanese ship, the Nippon and since being landed has been guarded by Italian marines attached to the Italian Legation in Peking and the Italian Consulate in Tientsin. According to an article in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post by Major Hugh B. C. Pollard, a British army officer, under the heading of "Gun Running and the Traffic in Arms," these munitions which the Italian interests brought to China in 1919 consist largely of rifles and other materials abandoned on the Italian front by the defeated Austrians during the European War.

According to the reports in the North China papers and dispatches published locally early before daylight on Saturday, February 23 the doors of the large godown in the Italian concession were opened in the presence of Italian marines and the military material stored therein was taken out and loaded on cars of the Peking-Mukden Railway after which it was transported to the town of Sanchiatien located about fourteen miles west of Peking on the Mentoukou branch line of the Peking-Suiyuan Railway. All of the checking of the delivery of the material was made by Italian marines acting in co-operation with agents of President Tsao Kun and General Wu Pei-fu. It required seventy freight cars or goods wagons to transport the material.

Now to carry the story still further, there are reports in circulation locally to the effect that a great deal of this material is now on its way South to be used in a reopening of the war—in deadly earnest this time—against Sun Yat-sen and his mercenary Yunnanese and Hunanese troops in Canton and also possibly against General Lu Yung-hsiang in Chekiang province. According to the local rumor the material is to be brought south on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway to Nanking from which place it will be brought partly to the Shanghai neighborhood overland and the remainder by coastwise ships to Fukieng province for use against both Dr. Sun and General Lu. These local rumors may be propaganda purely, but we give them for what they are worth.

Unless the Powers have changed their attitude on the subject as expressed during the European War and reiterated at the Washington Conference not to mention the conference at which the League of Nations was constituted, the Italian arms deal referred to above constitutes the largest and most significant arms enterprise of recent times and puts the Russian Whites in the piker class. It also turns into a ghastly joke the conference of the Disarmament Committee of the League of Nations which has just concluded its sittings in Rome for the reason that while the Italian Government at home was acting as host to an important committee of the League dealing with disarmament, Italian marines were putting over with the Chinese militarists the biggest arms deal consummated since the close of the European War.

There ought to be some way of stopping this sort of business for the chances are that these rifles and munitions will be used not only for the killing of thousands of innocent Chinese but possibly may find their way into the hands of bandits to be used in the murder of foreigners. The Chinese coolie with a rifle in his hands becomes a soldier or a bandit depending entirely upon circumstances. It isn't necessary to enlarge on this point!

On January 24, 1922 at the Washington Conference a serious attempt was made to obtain unanimous agreement to a resolution brought forward by Mr. Balfour on behalf of the British delegation placing an embargo on the sale of arms to China "until the establishment of a government whose authority is recognized throughout the whole country." This resolution was finally agreed to by the United States, France, Belgium, Portugal and the Netherlands, but had to be thrown out on February 1, just before the close of the Conference because of the refusal of the Italian and Japanese delegations to agree. The report of the debate is all given in detail in the report of the Conference published by the United States Government. A summary of the debate appeared in these columns of The China Press on December 13 last in case any of our readers desire to refer to it.

The latest previous attempt of the Powers to obtain an arms embargo in respect to China before the Washington Conference was on May 5, 1919 when the diplomatic representatives at Peking of America, Great Britain, Spain, Portugal, Russia, France, Brazil and Japan signed an agreement for an embargo. It was Italy alone this time which dissented.

At the Washington Conference when it was found that unanimous agreement was impossible the subject was left open for consideration through regular diplomatic channels. It would seem that the present action of Italy should present the stimulus for further diplomatic action. Either that or the chief Powers should give up their stand on the question and open up the field for the arms dealers of the whole world and turn China into a great arsenal in preparation for the final Armageddon.

The Korniloff Case

LATEST advices from Harbin show that Korniloff, found guilty by the Chinese Court there of murder, is nearer the execution of the death sentence than he was when we first drew attention to his case in these columns. We do not intend for one moment to suggest that the man in question was not properly found guilty of the serious charges laid against him, on which, he was undoubtedly given a most careful trial. But the point involved is not so much whether or not he merits the execution of the sentence of death passed upon him, but the principles involved by that judicial act.

It will be remembered that Korniloff was brought to trial on charges of murder, only after a considerable delay, during which time he was in custody. At the first trial he succeeded in effecting a dramatic escape from the court room which led to a further delay in bringing the trial to an end, and before judgment was eventually rendered, the Ministry of Justice in Peking announced a ruling making the death sentence applicable to unprotected foreigners found guilty of capital offences. The position then was that Korniloff was put on trial for offences which at the commencement of the case did not involve the death sentence. Between the conclusion of the hearings and the pronouncement of judgment, the decision was arrived at to apply the death sentence, and when the judgment of the Court was rendered, it was adjudged that Korniloff should pay the extreme penalty. Korniloff, we believe, is thus the first foreigner to stand within the shadow of death, placed there by the processes of the Chinese law.

We are not concerned with the merits or demerits of the case against Korniloff. If what is alleged against him is true, and a Chinese Court has said that it is, Korniloff would deserve such a sentence in most other countries, though it is contended that under Russian law, which the Chinese government promised to apply to Russians in Harbin and elsewhere, it is said capital punishment is only incurred in proven cases of high treason.

There are two points involved in this case. Firstly if the foregoing contention is correct, and it certainly is true that the Chinese government is bound to judge Russian offenders by Russian law, Korniloff could not lawfully be sentenced to death. Secondly, it is open to doubt whether there is any justice in a provision which, however just it might be in other circumstances, certainly ought not to be made retrospective, especially regarding a prisoner who on his trial only faced the prospect of a long term of penal servitude. Another consideration involved is that if the accused had been brought to trial with even ordinary despatch, his case would have been completed, and he would have been sentenced, long before the promulgation of the Ministry's decision, which was dated some time in December last. The position, therefore, is clear—under the law of his own country which should have been applied to him, Korniloff could not suffer death; it is now proposed to impose a penalty not in existence at the time he committed the crime alleged against him, or even when he was placed on trial.

To be quite frank about the matter, Korniloff, is an unfortunate peg on which to hang a good case. His record, apart from the case under discussion, has not been of lily-white purity and we would prefer to have adduced these arguments in behalf of a more worthy subject. This, however, does not affect the question at issue, for no matter how guilty Korniloff may be, no matter how much he richly deserves the sentence which has been imposed on him and confirmed by the High Court at Harbin, the irregularity of the whole matter must receive the closest attention of foreigners who may, sooner or later, be placed in exactly the same position as are Russians today. How far can this quality of retrospect be applied? To follow out logically the proposition involved in this instance, there appears no adequate reason why any offender found guilty of a murder committed prior to the institution of the death penalty affecting unprotected foreigners, should not be made to suffer a penalty un contemplated when the offence complained of was committed. But if the original hypothesis is wrong, then Korniloff should not be made to suffer death.

It is difficult to suggest what steps should be taken in an endeavor to right the legal wrong which it would appear is likely to be committed, but it is clear that the strongest possible protest should be made against the alteration of existing law to meet the exigencies of any particular case. This certainly seems to have been done in the present instance, while if it is true that under Russian law Korniloff would not be brought within the shadow of the scaffold, and the Chinese have promised to administer Russian law in such circumstances, it would seem that the Peking authorities have acted in breach of their own undertaking. It is true that the accused has still one more chance in an appeal to the Senate, and it is possible that there he might be more fortunate than he has been in the lower Courts, but the point we have endeavored to make is that the death sentence ought never to have been passed at all.

We would strongly urge the Chinese authorities responsible to give this matter their earnest consideration. Not because we are afraid an injustice would be done to the man immediately concerned, but because a question of important principle is involved. Upon the administration of Chinese justice in the next few years depends the amount of success which will attend the Chinese demand for the surrender of extra-territorial privileges. Naturally foreign governments will be reluctant to entrust their nationals to a country which not only lays itself open to an accusation of breach of faith, but apparently introduces an amendment of law at a time when it might be fairly argued that it is designed to meet a peculiar case.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

ON FRIENDSHIP

A man that hath not the grace of friendship in his soul, is deserving of no other punishment but to live for ever!

If love and sympathy, and hope and pity be, as men say, but the overmastering weakness of our limited nature—oh! then let us be flooded with it—let the consuming vastness of its swelling surge betray us in mercy to a swift and honorable death! I will excuse the making of this world if I can find a friend in it.

Words are the chief obstacles which are used to communicate that indescribable feeling of exhilaration and, as it were, foretaste of life eternal, which attends upon the discovery of mutual friendship—this being so, there is a great deal written upon this matter which we should "lose no time in reading."

Like the opening of the religious sense in man, the fellowship of kindred spirits gives a meaning and depth to life wholly disproportionate to the number of our days, and the circumspection of the worldly stage we strut upon. At the first limbing of this spring of souls the wounds and bitterness of months and years are healed as by the mercy of some redeeming antidote; once more we become men walking erect in newness of life without pride in the world's censure or esteem, free and happy in the contemplation of those mighty forces which sustain the soul, whilst the portals of Hope unfold upon the limitless expanse of human expectation!

The transfiguring sensation of affection reciprocated is a state of idealism which knows no distinction or disqualification of age, birth, circumstance, character, religion, race, or any other of the commonplace partitions of mankind; all may partake of this sacrament, so that it be in spirit and in truth.

Loneliness, asceticism, and the pride of personal accomplishment, are the arch foes of this blessedness; avarice, self-seeking, and the fascination of paltry duties also are the destroyers of it.

Duties?—claims?—promises?—these are the footscrapers on the Temple carriage-way; shall I not owe a cock to Aesculapius until I have returned the salutation of mine host?

What does the lover care for the noisy scuffle of earnest fortune—hunting at his gate—he is converting the trees, the moon, and the stars to this last audacious heresy of his, and there is no time to be lost upon earth.

Distractions, annoyances, and all manner of private and civic obligations do, of course, intrude themselves into his pleasing reveries—but he will dismiss these with a magnanimous disinterestedness as beneath judicial thought, as unworthy to violate the serenity of the fine spirit.

"Rapt into still communion that transcends

The imperfect offices of prayer and praise."

Friendship is the beginning of all virtue, without which even humanity itself is maimed, higher and purer than courage and philanthropy it is the supremest adornment of all earthly eminence and distinction; kings and ploughboys are thy glad slaves thereof, neither is there taint of bigotry in its courts.

Sceptres and sausages she alike treats in her motherly good-humor as poor children's playthings; she will not confiscate them but just lays them by in store for when her office is discharged, for these things she knows too well are not sufficient to

"arouse the sensual from their sleep
Of death, and win the vacant and the vain

To noble raptures."

Friendship often is so pure that it exists without merit—that is to say without what is called talent, attainment, distinguished parts, etc.; these, in very numerous cases, may be said to be Love's prompters, it is true, but they are not essential.

The Old World Is Rising And Sinking

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"We read reports every Winter of storms and unusually high tides that wash away the shore line. Some kind of station erected on Nantucket Island four years ago, 100 feet from the edge of the bank, had to be moved recently another hundred feet inshore on account of the inroads of the sea.

"Geologists tell us that the Atlantic is rising at the rate of a foot every century, and that the coastal waters are of a uniform depth of 100 feet or more one hundred miles out, but at that point there is a sharp drop to 2,000 feet depth. This, we are told, marks the ancient shore line of the North American continent.

"Is the land sinking, or is the sea rising?"

The land is sinking. This does not mean that all land is sinking all over the globe, or even all over a continent, but only that it is sinking in some regions and rising in others. On the western coast of South America the land is rising relatively to the sea level; along a large part of the North Atlantic coast it is sinking slightly.

There appears to be sinking on the western side of Japan, and the western coast of Greenland has sunk since the early settlements. In Sweden there has been both rising and sinking in relatively late times—sinking at the southern point and rising along the Gulf of Bothnia.

These changes, which are widely distributed over the earth, are not confined to the seaboard, but the mean sea level conveniently serves, like a barometric column, to show the effects graphically. Vast areas of land may undergo a tipping process, rising on one side and sinking on the other. It is the belief of geologists that there is such a tipping going on in the United States and Canada, around the Great Lake region, the "tilt" being toward the southwest, at a mean rate of about half-a-foot in a century.

If this should continue long enough it has been pointed out that Chicago would be drowned out by Lake Michigan! But that is only a geological threat, and geological threats are so long-winded and slow-footed that it requires ages to carry them out—even if they do not tire of waiting for fulfillment and quit.

For a thoughtful person who looks at things in the broad, there is something peculiarly fascinating in the restlessness of the round-backed earth. Its motions are so lifelike, and it seems to give so many tokens of annoyance or impatience. It breathes like a porpoise, and wrinkles, humps, and shakes itself, without the slightest regard to the comfort or the interests of the bioplastic swarms crawling and scratching on its epidermis.

The acme of absurdity seems to be reached when people talk about the earth having been made and prepared specially for man. He manages to survive on it pretty well for a short time, it is true; but he has proved that he can also survive on a tempest-whipped dirgible, or in a submarine or a street full of darting autos, and he must be very stupid if he has not yet learned that his only safety lies in always having his head with him. Nature, and the earth, won't help him; he must look out for himself.

If man's life were as long as some persons would, apparently, like to have it; if he could live, say, some millions of years, instead of a few decades, he would have a keen sense of the ups and downs of the earth's crust. Let a year be but as a second to him, and he would grow dizzy with the sinkings and risings. He would totter in a perpetual earthquake.

It is in their relations to time that things are pleasant or the reverse. Run the pictures that geology furnishes through the time-compressing kinematograph and the crust of the earth would look like a storm-tossed ocean of forming, dissolving, tossing and sinking rocks.

A mere stretching of time—or simply of the sense of time—reveals to our ordinary experience, in the midst of a geologic phantasmagoria of battling shapes, of which we are unaware, scenes of quiet landscape beauty, dotted with ruminating cattle and sheltering peaceful homes. The relativity of time is what we bank on.

As I have said, it is the land that sinks or rises; not the sea. Yet, in the long run, the very long run, according to the idea that has hitherto generally prevailed concerning the slow internal shrinking of the globe, there might be a rising of the sea, owing to the contraction of the surface area of the globe.

If the earth was once 9,000 miles in diameter instead of 8,000, its surface has shrunk about 21 percent, and if it could ever contract to 7,000 miles diameter, the surface would again be diminished about 23½ percent. Then, if the sea had the same amount of water that it has today, it would rise disastrously.

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

THINKING

A number of men got together recently to urge the public to preserve America's forests and streams against the encroachment of power schemes so that we may always have "camp sites" for people that can get away from cities.

"People in cities," said one of the speakers, "cannot think. They have to go to the country to think. In the country they are able to throw off all restraint, to observe the workings of nature, and, if I may use a homely illustration, to watch the cow ruminating upon her cud amid the joys austere of contemplative thought."

It is an excellent idea to preserve our forests for the benefit and pleasure of the great masses of dwellers in cities. It would be even a more excellent idea to find some way for factory workers, department store employees, bookkeepers, stenographers and shop girls to get to these forests once in a while and enjoy their beauties.

If this cannot be done and if the "camp sites" must remain the joy of the well-to-do minority, it might be worth while to inquire whether the various "power grabs" might not give cheaper light and transportation to the crowd that have to stay in cities.

Because the welfare of the majority, you know, is supposed to be our highest law.

But is it true that people think better in the country than in cities? The cow is a magnificent animal and worthy of great admiration, but has any person ever achieved that intellectual progress which comes from real thinking by watching her? There are hundreds of thousands of farm workers who watch a cow every day. Does it improve their minds?

It is a difficult matter to decide. It might be interesting to ascertain how many of the great thoughts that have been given to the world are conceived in the quietude of country life or "amid the crowd, the hum, the shock of life."

It is great fun to leave a bustling city and permit body and mind to relax amid quiet woodland surroundings. But thinking is really hard work and the mind that relaxes does not think. Besides which, a person who knows how to think can think in a boiler factory, while one who does not know how to think can gaze upon a cow or a tree or a mountain for a century and have no thoughts.

Some people believe that if they lie on their backs under the shelter of a glorious tree and review in their minds what they are going to do when they get back to town they are actually thinking. Whatever you choose to call this form of mental activity, you will find that it can be accomplished just as well in a boarding house.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

BY WM. T. KIRK

I saw John Osterip yesterday for the first time since last Summer, sed Pa to Ma last nite, John is a good old goof, sed Pa. What is it, a goof? I sed.

Doant you know that, 'Bobbie, sed Pa. Why, Bobbie, sed Pa, a goof is a gink.

Who is this John Osterip? sed Ma.

Oh, a old pal of mine many years ago, sed Pa. Him and me used to whine-eaw each other in the poker game, sed Pa. He played them so close to his vest, sed Pa, that the red paint rubbed off of the ace of hearts, sed Pa.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

Forty years ago almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which is poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions, and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without your or your physician knowing of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

The signature of Dr. J. C. H. H. H. guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have frequently prescribed Castoria for common ailments of children with good results." W. A. CHAMBERLAIN, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every case." WM. J. McBRIDE, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

Recently instruction was sent to the Minister of Communications to appoint Mr. Yuan to post of a Director of Government Railway.
